

THIRD TICKET CONFES.

RECAPITULATES EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE'S VOTE TO DESERT HILL.

"Our Plans" Will Be Disclosed on Tuesday Night—Caucuses Decide to Confer with the Society and Insist on a Democrat to Head Any Local Ticket They Support.

Not a Federal official was present at the conference in Mr. Charles S. Fairchild's office yesterday on the proposition to put a third ticket in the field. The Federal officials are supposed to oppose the scheme to a man.

Among the men who were present and participated in the conference were Charles S. Fairchild, William H. Grace, Wheeler H. Packham, and Peter H. Olney of the local Cuckoo and Edward M. Shepard of the Kings county Wood Gathers. Every one of these men is believed to favor the third ticket, but some of them would admit that no agreement had been reached as a result of the conference excepting that the proposition should be submitted to the two organizations—the Cuckoos in this city and the Sheeps in Kings—for their action thereon.

It was stated that the district leaders were to meet in conference at the hall of the Reform Club in East Twenty-seventh street, and the Kings county kick will hold their convention.

Mr. Shepard refused to be interviewed about the conference, but instead wrote the following little statement:

"We have had conferences. No decision will be reached until to-morrow evening, when local meetings of committees are to be held in both New York and Brooklyn."

Mr. Fairchild was more communicative:

"This conference has been determined of nothing," said he, "and nothing definite will be decided until to-morrow night."

"Will you be the candidate for Governor in case such a ticket is named?" he was asked.

"That is for others to decide. Men must have to make up their own minds as to whether they wish to be candidates or not."

"Have you received any information from other sections of the State that a third ticket such as has been proposed will be acceptable to any of those Democrats whose representatives like you, were excluded from the State Convention?"

"We have some data on that subject which will be used at the proper time and place."

Mr. Fairchild then gave some information of an interesting sort showing that the conference has resulted in a change of plan so far as it concerned the nomination of a straight Cuckoo ticket at the County Convention of that organization to-morrow night.

He said it was the intention of the New York State Democracy to put a straight county ticket in the field. Mr. Fairchild said:

"I do not think so," he replied, "I do not think so. I am a Democrat, but I am not a Cuckoo. I am a Democrat, but I am not a Cuckoo. I am a Democrat, but I am not a Cuckoo."

Mr. Fairchild declared that he would have nothing to say until to-morrow, when he would be able to talk over both the subject of the third ticket and the Cuckoo ticket with the district leaders to-morrow night.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

He said that the conference had decided to hold a meeting to-morrow night, at which time the district leaders would be present, and the subject of the third ticket would be discussed.

TANK STEAMER SUNK.

She Carries the Water with Oil and Trunked It Out with Her Headstall Light.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The British tank steamer Allegheny, Capt. Tucker, which left this port at 10 o'clock last night for Bremen, loaded with oil, was run into and sunk at 4:45 o'clock this morning by the Belgian tank steamer Caudan, Capt. Ails, inward bound. The accident happened two and one-half miles below John Light, in the Delaware Bay, about sixty-five miles below Philadelphia.

The Allegheny's crew of thirty men took to the fighting, and all were rescued by the tug-boat Pioneer and brought to this city this afternoon.

The weather was clear, and Pilot Church of Cape May, who was in charge of the Allegheny, first sighted the Caudan, which was under the charge of Pilot Sayre, and of Cape May, when the Caudan was about five miles distant. Both vessels had all lights displayed. According to Pilot Church, the Caudan then altered her course, compelling the Allegheny to do the same.

When the vessels were quite close the Caudan said to have again changed her course to the position she formerly occupied, and the Allegheny, not having time to change her position, struck her port quarter at the engine room, about six feet from the stern, and close to the cabin bulkhead. The Allegheny sunk in about ten minutes and now lies totally submerged on her port broadside in eight fathoms of water.

The officers and crew of the Allegheny lost all of their effects, the majority of them escaping in their night clothes. It was with difficulty that the seamen could be restrained by Capt. Tucker from jumping overboard when the collision occurred, and they were kept on the ship and stayed there till the Pioneer came alongside.

The Caudan, which was bound from Calais for Philadelphia, has a large hold in her bow, her stern being nearly all carried away. She is now a total wreck, and is being towed to the wharves of the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

Capt. Tucker could not tell this afternoon whether or not his boat would be a total loss. She now lies in a dangerous position, and the Allegheny's cargo was valued at $30,000, and was shipped by the Standard Oil Company.

THE JAPANESE ADVANCE.

THEIR ARMY IN WUJI OVERLOOKING CHINESE TERRITORY.

Japanese Troops Advancing on Mukden, in Manchuria. The Chinese Working Hard to Make Pekin Ready for an Attack—Foreigners Insulted at the Capital.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—A despatch from Shanghai to the Central News says the Japanese troops are reported to be rapidly reaching Mukden.

A Chinese despatch says: "Japanese cruisers are sighted here daily. The nature of the operations being carried on by these vessels is not known. An invasion is hourly expected."

The despatch also says it is reported that a rising has occurred in the province of Shantung.

The St. James's Gazette prints a despatch from Shanghai to a news agency here saying that the return to power of the Emperor's uncle, Prince Kung, who has been in disgrace since the late Emperor's death, is being discussed in the Japanese press.

Sung-Kwei, the Emperor's father-in-law, has started for Shan-hai-kwan, on the Gulf of Liautung, at the head of 5,000 picked Manchurian soldiers. The city of Shan-hai-kwan is of great strategic importance, it being the point at which the high road from the coast to Pekin begins.

Sung-Kwei, who is chief in command, is making preparations to resist the landing of a force of the enemy. Preparations for the better defence of Pekin are also being energetically pushed. It is expected that the garrison there will be reinforced by 30,000 Korean troops.

Twenty-five thousand troops, drafted from some of the provinces, who have been drilled by foreign officers, are being massed at Tungchow, a few miles southeast of Pekin. These troops are under command of Gen. Liu.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

THOUGHT TO BE J. S. OSBORNE.

The Man Killed at Woodstock Probably a New York Tailor.

WOODSTOCK, N. Y., Oct. 1.—It is supposed that the man killed on the railroad near here was a New York Times proof reader named Osborne. There was nothing in the pockets to establish identity, but the clothing bore the mark of a New York tailor, and he was recognized as a man who registered at the Hotel "J. Dillard" in Uxbridge, Mass., where he stopped the day before, that he had been a proof reader for the New York Times.

A despatch from the Times says a former proof reader in the office is missing, but that he was not named Dillard, and that the identity of the man killed in Uxbridge is not known.

The Times also says it is reported that a rising has occurred in the province of Shantung.

The St. James's Gazette prints a despatch from Shanghai to a news agency here saying that the return to power of the Emperor's uncle, Prince Kung, who has been in disgrace since the late Emperor's death, is being discussed in the Japanese press.

Sung-Kwei, the Emperor's father-in-law, has started for Shan-hai-kwan, on the Gulf of Liautung, at the head of 5,000 picked Manchurian soldiers. The city of Shan-hai-kwan is of great strategic importance, it being the point at which the high road from the coast to Pekin begins.

Sung-Kwei, who is chief in command, is making preparations to resist the landing of a force of the enemy. Preparations for the better defence of Pekin are also being energetically pushed. It is expected that the garrison there will be reinforced by 30,000 Korean troops.

Twenty-five thousand troops, drafted from some of the provinces, who have been drilled by foreign officers, are being massed at Tungchow, a few miles southeast of Pekin. These troops are under command of Gen. Liu.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which has prevailed in the Manchurian Department for years has left the Government in a state of confusion.

The foreign residents of Pekin are subjected to constant insult by the natives, and a number of them have been assaulted on the streets. Among the persons who have thus been maltreated are several British subjects, including the interpreter of the British Legation and Dr. Dudgeon.

Friction between Prince Kung, appointed to the throne, and the Tzuang-Yuan (the Foreign Board), and Li Hung Chang is inevitable. The Viceroy is certain to be hampered in his conduct of operations against the Japanese. The Imperial council is completely disorganized, and the corruption which